“As Google Scholar is not constructed as a bibliographic database we cannot give any guarantees that searching with combining journal name and ISSN will provide the best results for every journal.” (Harzing)

Este método deja fuera aquellos artículos válidos que POP no pueda identificar con el nombre de la revista.

“Searching by ISSN provides clean results and tends to limit results to hits coming from the publisher’s official website, thus automatically removing the more dubious stray citations from other sources.” “However, the use of the ISSN alone can still produce false positives.” (Harzing)

CUIDADO: Eliminar falsos positivos. (artículos que realmente NO son de la revista)

- Opción 1 (más conservador): Remueva el check mark del lado izquierdo h para no tomarlo en cuenta.
- Opción 2: Haga click en el título del artículo y verifique si es o no de la revista. Si NO es de la revista remueva el check mark del lado izquierdo.
- Opción 3: Si son demasiados, entonces reinicie la búsqueda utilizando la combinación del nombre de la revista y el ISSN.

EL PESO DE LA PRUEBA RECAE EN LAS/LOS PROFESORES

- Todas estas herramientas (ABDC, ABS, Sciamago, Latindex) son dinámicas y cambian sus listas de revistas periódicamente.
 - Admiten nuevas revistas y eliminan otras basándose en sus criterios de calidad.
- POP examina el índice de impacto H5 en tiempo real, por lo tanto, el análisis puede cambiar si se hace en otra fecha.

Esto implica que las y los profesores son responsables de guardar en sus archivos la evidencia (screen shots) que demuestre que al momento de someter su escrito a la revista (antes de la publicación), la misma cumplía con los criterios de la FAE.
